

The background of the entire advertisement is a photograph of a misty landscape at sunrise. In the foreground, two dark horses are silhouetted against the rising sun. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm, golden glow that fills the sky and reflects off the mist. A single, bright streak of light, possibly a comet or a meteor, cuts across the sky from the upper right towards the center. The overall mood is serene and peaceful.

Dear Valued Customers,

As we emerge from the COVID-19 pandemic, we are all finding the world much changed. As the industry shifts, it has always been our practice to identify and capitalize upon emerging opportunities. After much consideration and research, we are taking Bloodstock Investments back to its roots. Bloodstock Investments IX will depart from the weanling pinhook model and focus primarily on selecting, purchasing, breeding, and selling high quality maiden mares off the track.

Over the years we have had remarkable success with this model. In the early installments of Bloodstock Investments and with the late great Rick Porter's Sport Thoroughbreds, Taylor Made has successfully pinhooked dozens of mares for considerable return.

The current market conditions indicate that the time is right to transition to maiden mare pinhooking. Veterinary costs for pre-purchase exams on weanling and yearlings continue to rise as buyers become increasingly critical of radiographs and scopes. The commercial breeders are at the mercy of the buyer. Veterinary reports have a much greater impact on the value of a young horse than ever before. Pedigree and athletic ability have begun to take a back seat if the vets do not sign off on the horse. Though we do believe there will be some opportunity to buy a few select weanlings in this market with high pinhook potential, the risk at this time, is too high to build a package around this model. If we do find ideal weanlings for pinhooking, our current Bloodstock Investments members will have first rights to purchase shares.

Thanks,

Mark Taylor
